

Dominic Vale

Former contractor with a long history of federal investigations and corrections

Dominic is a fictional Canadian-born former construction subcontractor and courier. Over three decades he accumulated convictions for fraud, trafficking and weapons offences, served more than one federal sentence, and was repeatedly investigated by the RCMP, Canada Border Services Agency, Canada Revenue Agency and integrated proceeds-of-crime teams. A cross-border smuggling investigation involved a small vessel and customs seizure. His firearms licence was revoked, his parole has been suspended and restored more than once, and he has appealed correctional and parole decisions. He later sought his own records through access-to-information and personal-information requests. He has also received Employment Insurance, held a CMHC-insured mortgage, owned a sole proprietorship, registered a vessel, filed federal taxes inconsistently, voted, held a passport and crossed the border. No ethnic, religious or racial identity is assigned to this criminal-history test persona.

Professional experience

Renovation labourer

Fictional private contractor · 2019-2022

Short-term residential projects.

Owner-operator

Fictional courier sole proprietorship · 2008-2016

Operated vehicles and a small registered vessel; business ended after a border investigation.

Construction labourer and subcontractor

Various fictional private firms · 1994-2007

Seasonal and project-based work.

Education

High-school equivalency completed while in custody

Profile

Intermittent employment in construction, delivery and small-business operations, interrupted by periods in federal custody.

Additional Life Context

Canadian-born

Former firearms licensee; licence revoked around 2012

Several correctional employment-readiness courses

Former owner of a federally registered small vessel

Received Employment Insurance during periods outside custody

Currently under federal community supervision

SYNTHETIC TEST PERSONA. Created solely to test the My Info survey. This is not a biography, official record, or confirmation that any institution holds personal information.