

Peter Deloitte

Management accountant, public-sector adviser and former Olympic skier

Peter is a senior management accountant and a regular consultant to political leadership in Ottawa. He has advised most federal departments, serves on the Canada Revenue Agency departmental audit committee, participates in financial-standard and anti-money-laundering working groups, and has held security clearances including an above-top-secret clearance for work involving FINTRAC. Earlier, he was a grant-funded academic and competed in alpine skiing at the 1998 Nagano Olympics with support from Sport Canada and other federal bodies. He immigrated from Lebanon at age four or five and became a Canadian citizen in early high school. He is divorced, owns one shotgun, has a boating licence, holds a passport, travels frequently to the United States, and uses NEXUS. Transport Canada investigated a boating accident involving him in 1997. He has directed corporations and has owned a sole proprietorship and a trust.

Professional experience

Independent senior adviser

Fictional public-sector consulting practice · 2006-present

Advises political and departmental leaders across most federal portfolios; holds current federal contracts.

Departmental audit committee member

Canada Revenue Agency · 2019-present

Provides independent audit, risk and governance advice.

Associate professor of management accounting

Fictional Canadian university · 2003-2006

Led research supported by multiple tri-council grants.

Lecturer and research fellow

Fictional Canadian universities · 1994-2002

Published on public-sector accounting and received federal research support.

Profile

Senior management accountant specializing in governance, public finance, audit and financial standards.

Appointments And Memberships

Fellow, fictional Canadian Accounting Standards Society

Member, two federal-industry working groups on anti-money laundering

Education

- Doctorate in management accounting, fictional Canadian university
- Master of Business Administration, fictional Canadian university
- Professional accounting designation

- Frequent participant in federal consultations on financial standards
- Director of several fictional corporations; owner of a sole proprietorship and a trust

Sport

- Canadian Olympic alpine-skiing team member, Nagano 1998
- Received high-performance support involving Sport Canada and other federal sport institutions

Additional Life Context

- Arrived in Canada from Lebanon around 1974 at age four or five; naturalized around 1984
- Divorced around 2013
- Owns one licensed shotgun
- Holds a Pleasure Craft Operator Card, passport and NEXUS membership
- Frequent Canada-United States traveller

SYNTHETIC TEST PERSONA. Created solely to test the My Info survey. This is not a biography, official record, or confirmation that any institution holds personal information.